

RB Farquhar

case study

Client: Airbus UK, Broughton, North Wales

Project: Partnership supply agreement for cabins and modular buildings

Client need:

Airbus needed a flexible office solution to house the project team and engineers for the A380 Airbus. Because of the dynamic, project driven nature of the industry, Airbus did not want to invest in a permanent office solution. They required a project-specific solution that could be flexible in response to their changing needs, adding and removing sections as requirements changed.

Our solution:

Over the years that this successful partnership has endured, RB Farquhar have developed an in-depth understanding of this client's needs and have established strong relationships at every level. We offer expert advice, matching our stock of modular buildings and cabins to their specific requirements.

Result:

The partnership has grown in scope over time and RB Farquhar's role has developed. We now provide a range of facility management services and in future will provide a dedicated team member onsite to support the Airbus partnership.
